Amgen Award
for Science Teaching
EXCELLENCE

Amgen encourages excellence in science education by recognizing and honoring extraordinary K-12 science teachers with the Amgen Award for Science Teaching Excellence. Since the program's 1992 inception, Amgen has awarded more than $2 million to educators who make outstanding contributions to science teaching and a measurable impact on students' lives.

The 34 selected winners will receive an unrestricted cash award of $5,000, with the recipient's school receiving an additional $5,000 in the form of a restricted grant to be used for the expansion or enhancement of science programs, science resources, or professional development of science teachers.
